SPRUNG A SURPRISE IN THE BECKER CASE

The Defense Stricken With Amazement.

New York, Oct. 12.—When Morris Luban, upon whom they had depended for testimony that he overheard Rose, Webber, Vallon and Schepps plotting the murder of Herman Rosenthal and threatening to kill Becker if he interfered, swore that he heard Becker in the steam room of the Lafayette baths two or three weeks before the murder upbraiding Rose and threatening to kill Rosenthal with his own hands, Lieutenant Becker and his lawyers were struck with amazement and their plans were disordered.

"I know it's the last of me," whispered Luban to a court attendant who had observed his trembling and his fright, but there was no tremor in his voice when he looked steadily at Lieutenant Becker a few minutes later and testified: "Mr. Becker said, 'If that Rosenthal is not croaked I will croak him myself.'"

It was the most telling feature of a day that had gone steadily against the defense. The first witness, Thomas Ryan, a chauffeur, had blanched under the vicious looks shot at him by the gunmen at the bar, and had said in voice barely audible that he could not identify them. Giovanni Stanich, an Austrian of good birth, cultivated manners and keen intelligence had not been terrified by the black looks of the gunmen. He had looked in the face of Whitey Lewis (Frank Muller) and named Whitey as one of the four whom he saw shoot Rosenthal to death. And then came Luban, fearful and shrinking at first, but gaining courage as he went along and not only identified all four of the gunmen and Shapiro, the chauffeur, but delivered against Becker the first testimony connecting Becker with the murder.

When he walked to the bar of the court and stretched out his hand toward the gunmen, their voices suddenly shattered the dead quiet of the courtroom. They railed against him. They mouthed and mumbled. The voice of Lefty Louie Rosenberg rose to a screech. He was protesting against the method of identification. And when Luban had named them one by one, the retainers of the late Jack Zieg had lost a measure of the defiance and contemptuousness that have marked them. As for Becker the sweat was streaming down his face. He seemed to have aged.

MISSING AIRMEN

Feared Venturesome Aviators May Be Lost at Sea.

Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—Aviator Marshall Earl Reid and his passenger, Lieutenant Commander Henry G. Martin, his brother-in-law, who left Cape Point in Reid's hydroaeroplane to fly to the League Island navy yard and establish a new altitude record, are missing. Search among all the pilot stations along the Delaware bay and river has failed to give any clue to the missing men, and it is feared they may have been carried out to sea. The navy yard here has used the powerful wireless apparatus at its disposal, and everywhere the answer is "no news of Reid."

He Then Shot Himself.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 12.—Lloyd Anderson, aged twenty-three, colored, shot and fatally wounded Mrs. Martha Carter, aged twenty-four, also colored, at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Robinson. Anderson then turned the gun on himself and shot himself through the left side. It is believed he will die. Anderson was angry because the woman refused to live with him.

LABOR DOES NOT FORGET

PROF. WILSON'S ANTAGONISM TO ORGANIZED LABOR IS A MATTER OF RECORD.

REMEMBER THE SOUP HOUSES

The Dark Times of Democracy Still Fresh in the Memory of the Workingmen Who Had Nothing to Eat and No Place to Sleep.

PROF. WILSON ON LABOR.

"Labor is standardized by trades unions and this is the standard to which it is made to conform. . . . I need not point out how economically disastrous such a regulation of labor is. It is so unprofitable to the employer that in some trades it will presently not be worth while to attempt anything at all. . . . Our economic supremacy may be lost because the country grows more and more full of unprofitable servants."—From an address by Prof. Wilson to the graduating class of Princeton university, June 30, 1909.

Woodrow Wilson, Democratic candidate for president, is now addressing honeyed words to the laboring man in the hope of securing the labor vote. He would, if he could, have the workingman forget the address delivered by him at Princeton in 1909, in which he regretted that "labor is standardized by the trades unions," and asserted that such a regulation of labor is "economically disastrous." Nor will labor forget that in the same speech he characterized members of labor unions as "unprofitable servants."

No wonder that the Minnesota State Federation of Labor recently adopted resolutions condemning Professor Wilson for his antagonistic attitude toward organized labor.

And while Professor Wilson is appealing to the workingman to overlook his own personal views and vote the Democratic ticket he should know that the record of the Democratic party in connection with the workingman is engraved upon the tablets of labor's memory.

Labor has not voted for a Democratic president since the terrible experience which followed the Democratic victory in 1892.

And labor will not this year vote to repeat those distressing times.

What Labor Remembers.

Labor has not forgotten that under Democratic administration, before the election of President McKinley, thousands of idle men were walking the streets of every city, town and hamlet in the country in search of employment and the chance to earn an honest living, while those or many of them who chanced to have employment were working for a mere pittance.

Labor has not forgotten the soup houses established all over the country at that time.

Labor has not forgotten the processions of unemployed—from New York to San Francisco, and from the Canadian border to the Gulf, seeking NOT CHARITY, BUT WORK, during a Democratic national administration.

Labor has not forgotten Coxey's and Kelly's "armies," one of the products of Democracy.

Labor has not forgotten the hordes of tramps made by Democratic rule.

Labor has not forgotten that the Democratic national administration caused the depletion of labor's treasures to keep the destitute and unemployed alive.

Labor has not forgotten those trying days of Democratic misrule, when it turned its halls, meeting places and assembly rooms into sleeping quarters for all who could find room therein.

No Bread to Eat.

Labor has not forgotten that labor alone suffered then, that labor lacked bread to eat, clothes to wear and a roof for shelter.

Labor has not forgotten that labor alone worked out the problem of its salvation in those trying days.

Labor has not forgotten that it bounces Democratic rule for Republican rule at its first opportunity in the first presidential election after that period—in 1896, and has not voted for a Democratic candidate for president since.

Labor has not forgotten that trusts and monopolies were born in the White House while a Democratic president stood guardian.

Labor has not forgotten that Democratic free trade means free trade in labor only.

Now a Full Dinner Pail.

Labor has not forgotten its lesson on how it passed through poverty and friendlessness and Democratic mal-administration to the full dinner pail of the McKinley and subsequent Republican administrations.

Labor has not forgotten that the American Federation of Labor held its annual convention in the council chamber in the city hall, Chicago, the week of Monday, December 11, 1893, at a time when 5,000 men were nightly sleeping on the cold stone floors of

Chicago's city hall building, because of lack of money to secure other shelter.

Farmers Will Not Forget.

And farmers have not forgotten that during the period which brought such untold disaster to labor they themselves were neither prosperous nor happy. They worked hard and raised big crops, but their market was gone because their customers could not buy.

The candidate and the party whose policy puts labor out of a job robs the farmer of his profit just as truly as if the blow were aimed at him direct.

LODGE'S BULL'S EYE SHOTS

Massachusetts Senator States Some Truths in Few Words.

When Senator Lodge of Massachusetts opened the Taft campaign in Ohio recently he uttered some truths in a few words. Here are a few of the sentences which ought to be read and remembered:

"I believe most profoundly that now, as in the past, the success of the Republican party is for the best interests of the people of the United States."

"The Democratic house presented the woolen schedule in form which would put an end to the woolen manufactures of the United States and would slaughter the product of the American sheep raiser."

"If you desire to strike down the sheep and woolen industries of the United States, give the Democrats full power and you will have it done; if you do not, the only way to preserve them is to elect a Republican congress and a Republican president."

"If the proposed constitutional changes should be carried into effect they would completely revolutionize our system and theory of government, as we have known it since the beginning of history."

"All the progress that has been made in this country in 50 years has been by the Republican party."

"The Republican party has always been the party of sane and rational progress under the Constitution."

"The Republican party stands for liberty as against license; for order as against confusion; for loyalty to the great principles of justice and freedom which have been handed down to us from the days of Washington; in one word, it stands for the constitution which Marshall interpreted and which Lincoln saved."

DESERTS PROF. WILSON.

Why a Democratic Editor Declares for President Taft.

J. Holman Buck, the Democratic editor of the Western Nevada Miner at Mina, in voicing his allegiance to the Taft administration, is not sparing in his criticisms of the actions and policies of Governor Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic nominee, or of Roosevelt. Buck is a Democrat of the old school and readily sees the error of his ways in supporting the Democratic nominee for the presidency. In speaking of Wilson he has the following to say:

"A man utterly untried in the affairs of government, whose administration as governor of New Jersey has proven a failure and farce; whose views have been contracted by a lifetime spent in the narrow confines of the school room; whose associations have naturally been the classes rather than the masses and whose radical views and vagaries outrival those of Debbs and Emma Goldman and that no more represents real Democracy than does the frothiness of Roosevelt. The issues then are Taft, conservatism, the preservation of the constitution and a free Republican form of government, versus Wilson, socialistic radicalism and the turning over of established form of government to a mobocracy. Believing as we do we would be unjust to ourselves and false to principles and the public did we not align ourselves with Mr. Taft and the principles he represents. We hope that in the coming fray that he will be victorious and shall lend every effort at our command to bring this about. Party lines, by the issues promulgated, have been swept aside and conservative Democrats, be they true to themselves and principles, will support William Howard Taft for president, and rebuke the arrogant domination of Bryan and his piratical band of socialistic agitators."

DODGED TARIFF REVISION

Roosevelt, When President, Failed to Take Any Action.

Once in his life Mr. Roosevelt almost expressed an opinion on the tariff question. In a preliminary draft of one of his messages to congress as it came from the printer was this sentence: "In a later message I shall discuss the tariff." On revising the proof sheets of his message Mr. Roosevelt blue-penciled that line. And he never came even that near to discussing the question again as long as he remained in the White House.

And yet the tariff law then on the statute books was far more objectionable than the Payne law, which he is now so vigorously denouncing. Why didn't he revise the tariff the way he now says it ought to have been when he had the power? He says now he wants to "fix it so that more of the tariff 'prize money' will go into the pay envelope of the workman." Why didn't he "fix it" that way during the seven and one-half years he was in the White House?

In other words, in the face of his record while in office, is not all the Third Termer's present talk about the tariff the most transparent guff and bluff and balderdash?

Labor has not forgotten its lesson on how it passed through poverty and friendlessness and Democratic mal-administration to the full dinner pail of the McKinley and subsequent Republican administrations.

Labor has not forgotten that the American Federation of Labor held its annual convention in the council chamber in the city hall, Chicago, the week of Monday, December 11, 1893, at a time when 5,000 men were nightly sleeping on the cold stone floors of

Cincinnati's Mayor Arrested on Charge That Was Not Pressed.

Action Against Cincinnati's Mayor Fell Down.

Cincinnati, Oct. 12.—On warrants issued in Magistrate Hohenstein's court, Mayor Henry T. Hunt was arrested at the city hall on the charge that when he was county prosecutor he committed a felony by accepting settlements of claims against breweries. The warrants were issued on application of A. H. Larvin, secretary of the Owl Publishing company, which publishes a small weekly paper.

Mayor Hunt, when told that warrants were out for him, said he would wait at the city hall and be ready for any arrest. Following the arrest, the mayor and some friends proceeded to the suburb of Norwood, where the magistrate's court is located, and after waiting an hour and a half, the magistrate dismissed the case against the mayor, as no prosecuting witness appeared.

STRUCK FROM BEHIND

Judge Assaulted by a Man Who Re-sented Court Decision.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., Oct. 12.—Judge Francis M. Thompson was struck on the head and rendered unconscious by James W. West, a stone cutter, while he was campaigning for re-election on the Republican ticket. The judge stopped at the Fink stone quarry. West approached from behind and struck the judge with a large stone. West alleged he was not treated right when his wife was granted a divorce by the judge. West was arrested on the charge of attempting murder and placed in jail. The judge will recover.

Dr. Fritch Declared Innocent.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 12.—A jury in the circuit court declared Dr. George A. Fritch not guilty of the murder of Maybelle Millman of Ann Arbor, whose dismembered body was found in Ecorse creek, near Detroit, in August, 1909.

Wilson Invades Taft's State.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 12.—After a swig through northeastern Ohio Woodrow Wilson presented his case to the people of Cleveland last night in a speech on the tariff and the trusts.

Geo. T. Craddock, Rubie, Ark., says: "I was bothered with lumbago for seven years so I could not work. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine which gave me little or no relief. Two bottles of Foley Kidney Pills cured me and now I can do any kind of work. I cheerfully recommend them to my friends." F. B. Johnson & Co.

THE PURCHASING POWER OF ONE CHOICE STEER

That the prosperity of the United States under the administration of President Taft has helped the farmers very materially, when compared to the lean Democratic year of 1896 is shown in the comparative purchasing power of a 1,200-pound steer in 1896 and in 1911. In 1896 a steer of this weight would buy 612 pounds of coffee, and in 1911 663 pounds; that it would purchase 1,489 pounds of sugar in 1896, and 1,767 pounds in 1911; that in 1896 it would purchase 1,112 yards of shirting, and in 1911 1,586 yards; that in 1896 it would purchase twenty-seven pairs of shoes, and in 1911 thirty-seven pairs; that in 1896 it would purchase 4,533 pounds of eight-penny nails, and in 1911 6,196; that in 1896 it would purchase 12,240 common bricks, and in 1911 15,253. The comparison of the two years further shows that there has been an increase of 62 per cent. in the cash value of a fat steer.

WAR VETERANS FOR PRESIDENT TAFT

Effectiveness of New Pension Law Depends Largely Upon Election of Republican.

The old soldiers of Indiana are especially interested in the coming election, since upon its outcome is dependent in the next four years the effectiveness of the pension law passed this year, in May. The National Tribune, the non-partisan organ of the veterans, declares that the best interests of the veterans demands that they support President Taft and that the coming election has resolved itself into a contest between Taft and Wilson.

The Tribune says of Wilson: "Born in the south, of rabidly Confederate parents, spending his boyhood days among those who hated the Union soldiers with a consuming hatred, with all his earlier lifelong impressions fiercely against the men of the Union army, he can not help being even more hostile to the pensioners than Cleveland was, who came to manhood in a loyal community. All of Wilson's utterances have been distinctly unfriendly to the claims of Union veterans, and he undoubtedly shares the belief proclaimed by every prominent newspaper and public man who has supported him that the Union veterans are a singularly undeserving class that is pillaging the national treasury. He probably has this view much more strongly even than Grover Cleveland had."

The Tribune predicts if elected, Wilson would endeavor to make the pension act of May 11, 1912, of as little use as possible to veterans and says: "We know that this would be the case from the bitter calumnies with which the Wilson papers and the speeches of his supporters in Congress were filled during the consideration of the act of May 11, 1912. The veterans and their widows are now nearly twenty years older than they were when Cleveland made the merciless raid upon them. They are vastly less able to stand the mental distress and hardships of another such cruel period. They must rouse themselves, and induce all the voters that they can possibly influence against the man whose election threatens them with such calamitous consequences. Self-preservation, if no other reason, should dictate that they should exert every means in their power to elect William H. Taft and prevent the election of Woodrow Wilson."

PROTECTION FOR THE FARMERS.

Democratic Platform Makes False Assertion, While Hoosier Farmers Readily Understand Real Meaning.

Democratic speakers, in their attempts to defend their anti-protection plank, are endeavoring to throw dust in the eyes of Indiana farmers that the tillers of the soil may not see the real meaning of this particular plank. The Democratic platform asserts:

"The farmer sells largely in free markets and buys almost entirely in the protected markets."

The first half of that assertion is plain falsehood. The farmer has his full share of protection for his products. It was the fear of loss of that protection that caused many farmers to oppose the proposition to establish reciprocity with Canada.

The Indiana farmers are hardly expecting protected markets for their products and free markets in which to purchase what they may need. Manifestly they can not secure such discrimination in their favor. If the Democratic party should gain control of the government, and proceed to Free-Trade Tariff revision, the farmers' protection would have to go with the rest.

Does the Democratic party imagine that it can fool the farmers with the false statement that they haven't protection and thus cause them to believe that Free-Trade Tariff revision will not harm their interests; but give them an advantage?

The farmers know that they have protection. Also they know that they would lose it if the Democratic anti-protection policy were carried into effect.

COL. DURBIN LOOKS INTO STATE FINANCES

Shows What Democrats Have Done With Indiana's Money In Last Three Years.

Col. W. T. Durbin, Republican candidate for Governor, is giving the voters of Indiana some highly interesting figures and a close insight of the state treasury during the time the Commonwealth's finances have been in charge of Democrats and Republicans. He says that the state's bonded indebtedness matures in 1915 and that the option to redeem commenced in 1910, "so we begin with 1910." He says that in 1911 $100,000 was redeemed, the state fair bonds. In 1912 $150,000 was taken up that would not have been done, but the last legislature made it mandatory. Decidedly pointed as to details, Col. Durbin says:

"The sinking fund is a sacred fund created for the purpose of extinguishing this debt. The present Democratic administration has taken from that fund far in excess of the total bonded indebtedness of the state and transferred it to the general fund for running expenses; $977,000, I think, taken from the sinking fund to the general fund for running expenses. That is what I call an assessment. Mr. Tax Payer, on a dividend. During my administration there was paid $486,000 in interest, or an average of $122,000 a year.

"Now, we hear much about the advance payment by county treasurers. Whenever the tax is paid into the treasury the money belongs to the state and the state has a perfect right to ask for it and receive it. In 1901 there was a call for $794,000; in 1912, $952,000. In the sinking fund from 1901 to 1904, including 1904, there was $1,654,000 and there was taken from the general fund for the use for which the sinking fund was created, the payment of the debt, $1,148,000, which made up the $2,802,000 used to take up your bonded indebtedness. There has been altogether in that same fund in the three years of the present administration $1,077,836. There was taken $100,000 to pay the state fair fund, as I told you, and we had left $977,836 that was transferred before the $150,000 was applied last July together in the fund for this. During the four years of the former administration they disbursed the sum of $1,324,500. By three years of this administration, $1,398,500, or $600,000 more in three years than there was in four years. This is business."

"Here is the item of salaries of deputies and clerks: $388,000 per year during the former administration against an average of $556,000

Turning to Taft.

The New York Herald says that at the close of the fifth week of the nation-wide poll, being conducted by several metropolitan newspapers, President Taft has become decidedly stronger and that Republicans in several states who were rated as having gone over to the bull moose camp have returned to the Taft fold. These gains are reported as particularly noticeable in New England and the northwest.

As we have previously held, straw ballots and the like are of little practical value. As a rule they prove nothing in particular. This poll by metropolitan papers is not of much importance and would deserve little or no attention, even in respect to the Taft candidacy, were it not for the fact that the results tally with various other observations that have been and are still being made.

For instance, James A. Tawney, former congressman from Minnesota, who has been closely following the situation throughout the northwest, says that President Taft will carry Minnesota despite the claims being made by the bull moosers. He further declares that what is true of Minnesota is true of North Dakota, Montana, Iowa and other states in which he has conducted inquiries. In ent seems to be unmistakably toward the president, according to Mr. Tawney.

President Taft's statement, after reviewing the reports which have been received, that he has every reason to be satisfied with conditions and that he is confident of success and looking to the future optimistically is in line with the results shown in the nationwide newspaper poll, with the observations of Mr. Tawney and with the conclusions of other political observers who have been watching most closely. The conclusions of the president are also in line with those being drawn at Republican state headquarters, based on reports from all parts of Indiana.

Getting down to reasons—facts—the Republicans are now well organized nationally, just as they are in the state. A strong and aggressive campaign is being waged. Results are naturally showing not only in the polls but in the various other investigations.

Altogether these prove the wisdom of the correspondent of the New York Tribune, who said: "I am amazed the more I come in contact with the people to observe how the wind of public sentiment is veering around to Taft." Many of those who were for Roosevelt this same correspondent concludes, "are today turning to the safe and sane candidate, whose well balanced mind has presided over the affairs of the nation for the last four years."

A Bull Moose Whine.

The miserable, little contemptible Bull Moose newspapers up at Richmond have set up a puny whine because the commissioners of Wayne county have refused to appoint Bull Moose election inspectors. They unite—they have a combination to hoodwink the people of Richmond—in complaining that the refusal would not be so bad were it not for the fact that the board had promised to appoint their inspectors and then violated their pledge. The Item whines:

Citizens who require that their public officials be men of honor, ought to think well over Mr. Farlow's qualifications. He is a candidate for reelection.

We would suggest that the Bull Moose organs clean their own party of such men before it sets up standards for the older and wiser Republican party to follow. The Bull Moose organs in Wayne country are behind the standard of a man who is a more pronounced violator of pledges than any other man of equal prominence in public life.

It was Theodore Roosevelt who said it would be a calamity for him to take the nomination for a third term, and who said that he would adhere to the unwritten law that no president shall have more than two terms. Yet Theodore Roosevelt is today losing the esteem and respect of a great mass of the people of the United States because of his wild

Sam Sanderson Says:

That it is about time to get out your Schedule K's and dust them off.

chase after a third term in the white houses.

And there are plenty of other examples!

Editoriallettes:

Men acquire the habit of smoking, bum the cigars and borrow the matches. That is some men do.

The editor of the Powhattan Bee, Brown county, Kansas, has fallen heir to fifty thousand dollars. He announces that he will sell his paper and take to the tall timber. Just as if anybody would stay in the newspaper business after having fifty thousand brought in on a silver platter.

And too, we read that burglars blew up a safe in a newspaper office and stole thirteen cents. We presume the editor was treasurer of some Sunday school.

This is a sample of the melancholy days which are not melancholy when we have pumpkin day.

kind of seed he was planting back in the sowing time.

"I see a farmer sowing oats, and I say its oats you're going to reap, and he smiles a pitying sort of smile, and says, "Certainly, don't you think I know that?" But when I say to him, "Sow the card table and you'll reap a gambling son," he smiles a different sort of smile and says "Nonsense." And yet nine-tenths of the gamblers in the country came out of card-playing homes.

"I see a farmer sowing clover seed and he's not surprised when he has clover for a crop, but when he sows beer-kegs in his cellar and the decanter off his side-board, and in after years hears the reeling step of a drunken son, coming home from a night's debauch, he says, with surprise, 'My son, has it come to this. 'Well, you old fool of a farmer, what could you expect it to come to.'

"Sow the saloon and you'll rear drunks every time. The saloon is the dirtiest, most damnable, hell-soaked corrupt institution that ever wriggled its way out of the slime of the infernal pit, and to regulate or to license it, or to do anything else but prohibit it, is the most contemptibly low-down, damnable business any man or woman can engage in.

"I see the tidy farmer's wife planting morning glory seeds by the wall and the lattice, and I say, "Good morning, farmer's wife, what are you expecting to grow here?" And she smiles a pitying sort of smile, and says, "Why, morning glories, of course, what do you think, blackberries?" But when I say to her, sow the parlor dance and you may reap a ruined life in your home, she smiles another sort of smile, and says "umph, what nonsense, I can trust my daughters," and yet there are 300,000 ruined girls in our country today; one-half of them came out of Christian homes, and three-fourths of them out of country homes, 60,000 girls are dragged down to this life every year, 5,000 every month, 17 every day, and that means that some fair innocent young life is blasted in this land of ours every eight minutes.

"I read of an evening reception the other day given by some of our so-called best society in an eastern city, and the newspapers the next day, in commenting upon the costumes worn, said, "Most of the dresses were without the semblance of a sleeve, while the low-cut bodices were supported by little gold bands running up over the shoulder." In the name of God and decency, what does a woman want to dress like that for in the presence of a man.

"This low-neck business is the abomination of modern society. There are thousands of men and young men all about you who, on their physical sides, are bundles of quivering nerves and passion, and thousands of them are putting up an earnest, honest fight against impure thoughts and unholy passions, and its a burning shame that at almost every turn they make in society and even on the street they must be met with the half-clad forms of women who haven't got any more sense than to dress like some of you do.

"This peek-a-boo waist business and open lace work over your breast and arms is all wrong. You say you have to dress that way in order to be comfortable and keep cool. In plain Anglo-Saxon language that is a lie. A man walks along on the same sidewalk and under the same sun, and he wears an undervest, an outer shirt, collar, necktie, vest, and coat, and he's not uncomfortable, except on the hottest day, when he can take his coat off and it's not necessary for a woman to go about with her arms and breast covered with mosquito-bar, and next to nothing in order to be comfortable.

"If you should ask any of you women why you dress as you do, and you told the truth and wouldn't lie, you would say that you do it out of difference to the taste of the opposite sex, and that is one of the great reasons why you ought to dress as you do. God expects a woman to be beautiful so far as this is possible and to be cleanly and attractive."

SEARCH FOR CAMPBELL AND BRIDE OF 2 DAYS STARTED

the Big Four train for Indianapolis.

It has been reported to the sheriff that they attempted in vain to obtain a marriage license in Indianapolis. Illustated in their efforts to get married, they boarded an I & C. traction car and came to this city. They hired an automobile at Ball's garage and drove to Milroy, daring to enter the very place where they evaded the officials and made good their escape.

The purpose of the trip back to Milroy, it is stated, was to get Howard Campbell's wheel chair. Young Campbell is a hopeless cripple, wholly unable to walk. He made the trip to St. Paul, Indianapolis, here and back to Milroy without his chair, being transferred from place to place in a cab or automobile. The chair was loaded in the automobile from here and the couple hurried on to St. Paul where they boarded the 4:20 train. When Sheriff Beabout called the Big Four agent at St. Paul, the latter instantly remembered Campbell and Miss Vernal. He said that they bought tickets to Cincinnati.

It is said that Campbell told his friends in Milroy that they would never be back and that he had a position as a bookkeeper in a Kentucky city which would pay sixty dollars a month. The report that Campbell and his bride were back in Milroy last evening arose due to the fact that some one from Milroy called up a Rushville office by telephone and said it was Campbell talking. Milroy people said today that the couple had not returned there.

The flight to Indianapolis, back here and then to Cincinnati by way of Milroy and St. Paul is but a flash in the pan as compared with the unusual methods Campbell and Miss Vernal resorted to in order to get away. The full story of their elopement was told in the Daily Republican yesterday.

The girl's parents live in Indianapolis. She was sent to Clermont some time ago because she was incorrigible, and from there was sent to the home of Dr. Hume in Milroy. A few days ago the girl's parents in Indianapolis received a letter from her in which she told of her desire to marry Campbell. Saying nothing of their objection in reply the parents notified the officers at the Clermont school and an officer was sent to bring the girl back to the school. Campbell, however, received word and with auto frustrated the plans of the parents and the school officials after her detention in Milroy.

Mrs. Bernell-Campbell, who had been paroled from the school, was being brought back because she had violated her parole. Officials of the school said that her marriage will be no bar to her being compelled to serve the remainder of her term if she can be found.

AMUSEMENTS

The other offering, a Pathé, "The Martyrs," is a magnificent colored film, depicting a Roman story of life among the Christians in the early days.

Muncie Press: If Professor Wilson should be elected in 1912, as Mr. Cleveland was in 1892, is there any assurance that in 1916 he could come any nearer getting favorable mention in the democratic national platform than Mr. Cleveland did in 1896?

Enemies Face to Face.

As events shaped themselves the problem presented by Dr. Massey found a speedy solution. Had I been compelled to grapple with it unaided I am not yet sure what course I should have pursued. Of my own volition I must have hesitated to take a step which could not fail to throw suspicion—at least among the only partially informed—upon my absent and defenseless friend. But all choice in the matter was denied me.

I arranged with Dr. Massey that he should go unaccompanied to his patient's room, and, without so much as a hint that he was cognizant of what had transpired on the previous night, make whatever examination he deemed necessary to a definite conclusion.

In the meantime, having learned from Checkabedy that Evelyn was in the breakfast room, I joined her there. Her curiosity had ripened by a night's suppression; and having dismissed the footman who was serving her, she at once demanded the fulfillment of my promise to tell her everything.

"It's another case where you have the right to say, 'I told you so!' I began, as I took a chair next to her. In her wide blue eyes I read that she divined my meaning.

"Yes," I went on, "the man upstairs is not your uncle. We have been nursing a viper, it seems, who promises to give us a deal of trouble before we are through with him."

There was no need for her to question me. Rapidly, succinctly, I told her the story I had learned from Yup Sing; told her, too, of the scene in the bedchamber, after I had left her on the previous night; and showed her the letter from McNish's poor old Scotch mother.

"There, there," I soothed, as in silence but with quivering lips and eyes overflowing, she started to read the tremblingly penned sentences a second time. "I'm sorry for the dear old creature, too, but—"

"Philip," she interrupted me, her face and voice alike pleading. "Let us send him back to her!"

"Send him back!" I repeated in amazement.

"Yes. We can, can't we? We don't have to give him up to those horrid Chinamen, do we? He's well enough to go, isn't he? Why can't we call a cab, give him enough money for his passage and send him, at once? There's a steamer sailing this morning, isn't there?"

For just a moment I was on the point of yielding. Seldom has a villain had a more puissant advocate than had McNish in this enthusiastic, resolute girl, spurred to his salvation by the pathetic appeal of that maternal yearning which breathed from every line of the letter before her. The unselfish purity of her cause illuminated and transfigured her. Her beauty was radiant.

"Answer me!" she insisted, impatient at my silence. "Isn't it possible? Isn't it really the very best way out of a difficulty? It will never do to admit that we have had that man here in mistake for Uncle Robert, you know."

"But there is something you have forgotten, my dear child," I objected, with all the mildness I could bestow upon the words. "In your wish to give joy to this poor old mother—and in that I am with you heart and soul—

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Rushville People Know How to Save it.

Many Rushville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Here is a Rushville citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. Ella Endicott, 125 South Harrison street, Rushville, Ind., says: "We have used Doan's Kidney Pills in our family with good results. A member of the family suffered from severe pains through his back and had difficulty in straightening after stooping. His kidneys were also irregular in action. Finally he used Doan's Kidney Pills and they corrected the troubles."

Enemies Face to Face.

you have quite overlooked the fact that we are still with scarcely a scintilla of information concerning the present whereabouts of your uncle."

"Oh, no, I haven't," was her prompt rejoinder, "but I don't see what that has to do with it, except that it makes it all the more necessary to pretend that we still believe this McNish is he. How will sending McNish abroad hinder—" And then they broke off, suddenly, as I had rather expected she would, knowing what a keen brain she had and how once she got clear perspective on the situation, she must see again the very point she had suggested once herself, and which I had still in mind.

"You mean," she began again, speaking very slowly now, as she mentally focused the conditions, "that we must hold McNish as a hostage, and only give him up when they return Uncle Robert to us?"

"Exactly," I agreed. "Just as two armies do that are at war—exchange prisoners."

"Isn't there any other way?" she asked, frowning. "Oh, there must be. I don't care a straw, you know, for that wicked man; but, Phillip, think of his poor old brother!"

"I do think," I told her. "I've been thinking, ever since I read her letter, and if it were possible, Evelyn, I'd give the reprobate his chance for her sake, little as he deserves it. But I've been thinking of Cameron, too. He may be somewhere on the high seas, as Miss Clement's note implied, or he may be a prisoner in some underground dungeon of Chinatown. Whether he is, we are safe in concluding he is neither comfortable nor happy. Why, then, should we consider, to come right down to practicalities, this old Scotch mother of an infamous son, when the safety—the life even—of one we both love so dearly may at this moment be at stake?"

I flattered myself there was no getting away from this argument. It seemed to me conclusive, but the letter had stirred the sentimental depths of the girl's nature, and she refused to yield without one last effort.

"I know, Phillip. I appreciate every word of what you have said; but couldn't we find out what we want to know through Miss Clement? She must have a lot more information than she put in that little hurriedly written note. Or, couldn't O'Hara find out for us?"

Before I could answer her, Checkabedy stood in the doorway.

"Dr. Massey has just come down, Mr. Clyde," he said, "and would you spare him a moment in the reception room?"

I turned to Evelyn.

"Shall we have him in here?" I asked. And at her consent, Checkabedy, a moment later, led the doctor to us—a very changed doctor, a very decidedly less cocksure doctor than I had encountered earlier that morning in his Fifty-sixth street office.

Even in his bow to Evelyn I detected the shamefaced humiliation he was suffering.

"We take off our hats to your perspicacity, Miss Grayson," he said, confirming my reading. "I had never thought such a modern real-life instance of Lesurques and Dubose possible."

"Then you admit?" I asked, smiling.

"Candidly. There is no question. Yet I could have sworn yesterday that I was attending Mr. Cameron. It is the most remarkable resemblance I have ever seen."

Evelyn asked him to be seated and I drew out a chair for him.

"And how do you find the patient?" I inquired, when he had sat down.

"Quite normal in every respect save one. He is in a highly nervous state. He is endeavoring to maintain the fiction that he is the gentleman we supposed he was. He evidently learned his lesson from Mr. Bryan, before we suspected anything. It is really wonderful how well he does it, considering that he never saw the man he is impersonating."

"But he must know that he has been discovered. He certainly knows I have this letter."

"A desperate man will battle against the most overwhelming odds," Dr. Massey observed, "and he is a desperate man."

"You gave no sign that you knew?" Evelyn asked.

"Not the slightest. I pretended that I believed him Mr. Cameron."

"But Mr. Bryan must have—" I began.

"On the contrary," said the doctor, "Mr. Bryan knows him only as the Mr. Cameron he has nursed from the first. He would be the last man to indicate to his patient a knowledge of anything untoward."

"Miss Grayson and I were just discussing a course of action when you arrived, Doctor," I explained, "but had reached no conclusion. Last night I arranged with Yup Sing, who is probably the most prominent and best educated Chinaman in New York, and his friend the Chinese Vice Consul to meet me here today at noon. The chances are they will bring a United States deputy marshal with them, with a warrant for McNish's arrest. Now if we give him up, what will be the result? He will still maintain that he is Cameron in spite of our knowledge to the contrary. Yup Sing and his clan will insist that he is right and that we are wrong, and our chances of finding Cameron will dwindle. It isn't reasonable to expect that those engaged in the abduction plot will confess to their error and inform us as to Cameron's place of detention, is it?"

Dr. Massey knitted his brow behind the bow of his glasses and pursed his thin lips.

"We are certainly confronted by a very trying complication," he admitted with characteristic gravity.

"Miss Grayson has suggested that we send McNish abroad—at once, on a steamer sailing this morning."

"Mr. Bryan could go with him," Evelyn volunteered.

"If the United States authorities have a warrant for him," the physician argued, "that would only delay matters. They would arrest him on landing."

There was no question as to the accuracy of this deduction.

"And the newspapers," I added, "would be sure to publish columns of speculation. . . . If we could only wring an admission from McNish it would simplify matters."

"Isn't there some one you could confront him with?" Dr. Massey asked, and hope rose within me at the suggestion.

"As far as I can make out, from what O'Hara tells me," was my rejoinder, "the police have in custody now the Eurasian cook who, I believe, has been McNish's Nemesis these sixteen years. If we could bring those two miscreants face to face, McNish would be sure to betray himself."

"Then arrange it by all means," urged the doctor.

"Have McNish taken there, you mean?"

"Or have the Eurasian brought here."

And so, ultimately through the offices of O'Hara, who all this time had been awaiting me in the tonneau of my car which still stood at the door, John Soy, accompanied by two plain clothes men from the Detective Bureau, was brought from the Tombs to that sumptuous home on upper Fifth avenue.

I say "ultimately" because his coming was delayed beyond all patience. Hour after hour passed. The morning dragged by with periodic telephone excuses from O'Hara. The hearing was in progress before the police magistrate. . . . Soy had been held for the grand jury. . . . The magistrate would have to sign a permit and he could not be approached until he came off the bench. . . . Soy had gone to the Tombs. . . . The warden was at luncheon and could not be seen for half an hour.

Meanwhile Dr. Massey, impelled by the necessities of his practice, had departed, and Yup Sing and the vice consul, Chen Mok, had arrived and been relegated to the reception room. To my relief, Checkabedy reported that they were unaccompanied. Meanwhile, too, Evelyn had received a call from Miss Clement and had learned with some dismay that the missionary's ill-fated informant had left with her no more definite information regarding Cameron's transportation than that which she had already conveyed to us.

"We're just starting in a taxicab," came at length from O'Hara over the wire. "We'll be there in less than half an hour."

And in less than half an hour they came, an ignoble, vulgar quartette against a stately, pompous background.

I met them in the great hall, standing before the broad, sculptured chimney-piece.

The three detectives were more or less of a piece—gross, coarse, red-faced men whose hands and feet seemed out of all proportion to their size, bulky as it was. Of the three O'Hara, possibly because of familiarity, struck me as the least offensive. But after all it was not the detectives who claimed and held my chief interest, but the shrunken, shadow-like creature they had in charge, whom I recognized instantly as the supposed castaway the Sibylla had picked up that warm October day somewhere east of Nantucket—the slinking figure I had followed through the press of Doyers street almost to my death.

My conjecture was thus in part verified; John Soy and Peter Johnson were the same, and it only remained now to prove that the rest of my guess was as well founded.

Stepping to the door of the reception room, I made brief apology for my detention and bade my two Catholic visitors join the others.

"I think Mr. Yun," I observed "that

NEWS IS CONFINED MAINLY TO RUMORS

Few Details of the Balkan Row Getting Out.

London, Oct. 12.—There is no confirmation from any source of the rumor that Scutari has been captured, and all evidence indicates that it is not true. There are apparently two Montenegrin armies in Podgoritz and Antivari respectively on their way to Scutari. Fighting is vaguely reported, but no details are given.

According to a dispatch from Antivari, the Catholic Malissori tribesmen are siding with the Montenegrins and the Moslem Malissori with the Turks. It is assumed that the Montenegrins who invaded the Novi bazar operated from Berana, which would dispose of the Turkish report that the Montenegrins were defeated there.

Nothing further has been heard of the report that Greece is to abandon the alliance with the Balkan states. The report is indignantly denied at Athens, but not from official quarters.

The reported breakdown of the peace negotiations between Italy and Turkey created a sensation in Vienna, where it is regarded as the signal for a general Balkan war.

The rumored Russian mobilization of Cossacks is denied at St. Petersburg.

To Safeguard Old Sultan.

Vienna, Oct. 12.—A dispatch from Salonika says the former sultan Abdul Hamid, who is a prisoner there, will be taken to Constantinople lest he be captured by Christians in the event of war or released to the Albanians and again placed on the Turkish throne.

Turks Finally Fleed.

Cettinje, Oct. 12.—Moyokavitz and all the chief positions around Tarabosch have been taken by the Montenegrins, notwithstanding the desperate resistance of the Turks, who finally fled.

Burgett shot the robber, who was discovered an hour later after his companions had deserted him. The robber was taken to Mena. Fifty or more in an armed posse are pursuing the bandits.

A LONG LIST OF NEW WITNESSES

Senate Committee Will Be Busy Next Week.

PROBING CAMPAIGN FUNDS

Coming Sessions Will Be Marked by the Examination of Persons Representing All the Various Big Political Interests and Some Important Testimony Is Expected to Be Brought Out—Previous Campaign Figures.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Before the senate committee additional testimony in regard to contributions by corporations to the Roosevelt campaign of 1904 has been brought out. Upon adjournment of the committee to meet again Monday, announcement was made that Alton B. Parker, George W. Perkins, William McCombs, chairman of the Democratic national committee; William McAdoo, assistant chairman of the same committee; Roger C. Sullivan, Josiah Quincy, Lieutenant Governor H. L. Nichols of Ohio, Frank A. Munsey, and Senator John H. Bankhead will be heard as witnesses next week.

Edward T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, banker and associate of J. P. Morgan, told of the interest taken by himself and his business friends in promoting the presidential candidacy of Mr. Roosevelt in 1904.

In 1904 Mr. Stotesbury made collections among business men in Pennsylvania in behalf of the Republican national committee and the Republican candidate. He raised $165,759.50, and turned that amount over to Cornelius N. Bliss, the treasurer of the committee. It was apparent that the Roosevelt campaign managers relied on Mr. Stotesbury to tap the steel interests of the country. He collected $32,000 from these sources and this, added to the $150,000 contributed by J. P. Morgan, makes a total of $188,000 from interests keenly concerned in tariff legislation.

List of Contributors.

Among those contributing to the 1904 campaign at the instance of Mr. Stotesbury were the United States Steel corporation, $12,775; the American Banknote company, $1,000; Charlemagne Tower, $7,500; Drexel & Co., Philadelphia representatives of J. P. Morgan, $5,000; Bethlehem Steel company, $5,000; Cambria Steel company, $5,000; William Cramp & Sons, $1,000; Thomas Dolan, $10,000; G. W. Elkins, $2,500; Midvale Steel company, $5,000; Philadelphia Electric company, $2,000.

In 1908 Mr. Stotesbury again passed the hat around among his business friends in Pennsylvania. He was not as successful that year. He harvested only $101,051.67. Mr. Stotesbury testified that he contributed $25,000 this year to Mr. Taft's campaign for re-nomination.

Fred W. Upham, former treasurer of the Republican national committee, testified that he had no knowledge of political operations in 1904. Mr. Upham said he collected $548,320 in the west in 1908. Prior to that Chicago headquarters had drawn on New York for its funds.

Frank H. Smith of Illinois, collector of internal revenue at Springfield, who managed the Taft pre-convention campaign in that state, testified that he spent approximately $38,000 in pushing the president's candidacy.

The Call of Country.

Valparaiso, Ind., Oct. 12.—One hundred and three Greeks, employed on the various interurban line constructions and improvements in this country, quit work and started for New York, where they will embark for Greece to take part in the war of the Balkan states against Turkey.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

Turkey has ordered her fleet to mobilize.

It is reported that the Italian fleet is steaming toward Turkish waters with a view to forcing the Dardanelles.

Uncle Sam is sending details of the championship baseball games by wireless to the men in the navy who are on ships at sea.

A powder explosion occurred at Tampico, Mexico, in which more than 100 people were killed and twice that number injured.

The New York W. C. T. U. is urging the secretary of the navy to use water from the Niagara river in naming the new battleship New York.

A cyclone destroyed many residences and wrecked the Presbyterian church at Burton, Tex. Many acres of open cotton were swept clean by the wind.

William Lorimer, the deposed senator from Illinois, declares he is going to devote the rest of his life, if necessary, to an effort to vindicate himself before the American people.

The total estate of the late Colonel John J. Astor will appraise at many millions less than has been supposed. The executors have computed the net value of the estate at $77,826,000, whereas previous estimates had ranged about $150,000,000.

Hotel Clerks Identify Alleged Boston Again Triumphs Over New York.

AS HARBINGERS OF TROUBLE THE LATTER GAVE STERN CHASE

From Evidence Brought Out in Conspiracy Trial at Indianapolis, It Appears That the McNamaras and McManigal Had Been Present in Many Cities Simultaneously With or Just Prior to Dynamite Explosions.

Indianapolis, Oct. 12.—In the dynamite trial the government continues taking the testimony of hotel clerks, the evidence showing that men on trial were at the hotels simultaneously with the dynamiting of structures in the cities named or that they had been there at divers times just prior to the explosions. Photographs of the McNamaras were identified by the witnesses as those of men who had registered under assumed names, and McManigal was identified by several of the clerks.

The government's first mention in this case of Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor was made when Special Assistant United States Attorney J. W. Noel asked a hotel clerk from St. Louis if Gompers was at the hotel at the time of O. A. Vietsmoe, Frank M. Ryan, J. M. McNamara and M. J. Young, defendants, and several other labor men were registered while the A. F. of L. convention of 1910 was in progress. There was objection on the part of the defense, but Mr. Noel promised to show the relevancy of this testimony later.

When Senator Kern objected to this, Attorney Noel said: "The prosecution will show that Samuel Gompers did have something to do with the defense of this conspiracy in California, if nothing else." Judge Anderson refused to strike the evidence from the record.

Judge Anderson in ruling on the testimony concerning Gompers which Mr. Noel said it would be shown was relevant in connection with the situation on the coast, said if it later appeared that the question of Mr. Gompers' presence in St. Louis at the time indicated was not relevant he would so instruct the jury and would tell them not to consider any mention of Gompers' name in connection with the St. Louis registrations.

DODGED AND RAN

But Detective's Shot Brought Down This Escaping Prisoner.

Tipton, Ind., Oct. 12.—A man supposed to be Robert Brockman from the papers found on him, and said to be wanted at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., for blowing safe, was shot and killed while trying to find a hiding place under the veranda at Antony Hurley's home in this city.

The shot was fired by R. O. Emerson of Lima, O., a detective in the employ of the Lake Erie & Western railroad. The bullet struck Brockman in the heart.

Emerson saw the man and notified Chief of Police Devault there was a reward of $600 for his capture. Brockman was arrested and taken before the mayor. While the authorities were consulting Brockman dodged and ran. Shots were fired at him, but he kept on running till he reached the Hurley home. He darted around the house and then under the porch, but the officers saw him. Emerson was the first to reach the house. He stooped over and fired one shot, killing him. On his person were found a quantity of nitroglycerin, fuses, flashlight and other things usually used by safe-blowers.

PRUNE THE TREES IS ADMONITION

Prof. C. G. Woodbury, Indiana Apple Show Secretary, Gives Apple Growers Timely Advice.

SEVERE WINTER INJURIOUS

Blight and severe winter injury has caused great damage to Indiana apple orchards. Prof. C. G. Woodbury, secretary of the Indiana Apple Show which is to be held in Indianapolis, November 13-19, 1912, says, "Great care should be exercised in removing all dead wood from apple trees before the leaves fall this autumn. Limbs injured by the weather or blight can be easily seen now, and can be removed more readily and cheaper than at the time of the annual pruning in the early spring. Dead leaves are worse than useless to the trees as they harbor numerous forms of fungus troubles. Sharpen up your pole shear and pruning knife, and remove this dead wood at once. This will remove one great source of infection, so that it will be easier to produce show fruit for the 1913 Apple Show."

Apple culture is not a haphazard industry. Every means known to science must be exercised in past control, if merchantable fruit is to be produced. Orchard sanitation, as well as spraying, must be practiced. Great care should be exercised in caring for these trees, as the apple is one of the most important crops of the country.

tions; you have broken every one of God's commandments over and over again and eternal justice says that you must suffer for your sin. But we're told in II Peter 3:9, it is not the will of God that anyone should perish, and so in Christ God made a way for you to escape.

"Christ wants to save you. You are lost tonight because of your sin, but we're told in Luke 19:10 that Christ came to seek and save that which was lost. He says "Behold I stand at the door and knock." Your salvation is the passion of his heart and every drop of blood that dyed the Cross of Calvary speaks tonight and tells you that in all the world there never has been a passion like the passion of Christ for you.

"Christ is able to save you.

"He can save out of the very jaws of hell and no one can ever be too far away or too far down to be saved by the power of Christ; for we are told in Heb. 7:25. He is able to save to the uttermost all who come unto God by Him." And so I say again if you are not saved it will be your own fault.

"Why is it that people will not come to God? What is it that stands between them?

"With young people there are two things I think especially that keep them from coming.

"1. The first is pleasure.

"A young lady who was a most beautiful waltzer came to Dr. John Hall one day and said "I want to join the church."

"Well," he said, "you know it is one thing to join the church and another thing to give yourself to Jesus Christ and I could not consent to the one unless I knew the other to be true. But if you become a Christian there are certain things you must give up."

"What do you mean? Do you mean that if I become a Christian I must give up dancing?"

"And the doctor replied, "If you become a Christian and Jesus Christ asks you to give up your dancing, you must be ready to do it."

"And she said, "Dr. Hall, if it comes to choosing between Jesus Christ and the dance, I will hold to my dancing and let Jesus Christ go."

"And the poor girl made her choice and went out into the world.

"Listen. To be a Christian does not mean to give up the dance; it does not mean to give up the theater or to give up this or that. But it does mean to give yourself up to God and then to do his will when he makes it clear. But I tell you now that any young woman who prefers the dance or any other thing to Christ is making the fatal mistake of her life, and the time will come when this and every other form of vain and empty and godless pleasure will become to you as the apples of Sodom, full of ashes and bitterness.

"Happiness doesn't come from card playing or theater going or wearing decollete dresses. You've got a mighty infinitesimal mediocre make up if you can be satisfied with things like these, but if you had an earnest heart and a soul of any size you'd never be satisfied till you had something better and higher.

"The other thing that keeps you back is your pride.

"The reason why I know your pride is of the devil is because it will allow you to associate with low down trifling fellows and to give yourself to that which is unclean and mean and unworthy and never blush will come to your cheek. And yet it won't allow you to walk down this aisle is a sign that you mean for fear some trifling and worthless young fellow or some empty headed, good for nothing woman will laugh at you. There isn't a young man in the town worth speaking to there isn't a young woman worth noticing when you pass her on the street that will sneer at you if you do what you think is right. And yet the Bible never spoke truer when it said: "The fear of man bringeth a snare." It's sure thing that catches you for the devil and leads to eternal ruin instead of to Christ and eternal life. Suppose they do laugh. He who laughs last, laughs best."

SPRUNG A SURPRISE IN THE BECKER CASE

The Defense Stricken With Amazement.

New York, Oct. 12.—When Morris Luban, upon whom they had depended for testimony that he overheard Rose, Webber, Fallon and Schepps plotting the murder of Herman Rosenthal and threatening to kill Becker if he interfered, swore that he heard Becker in the steam room of the Lafayette baths two or three weeks before the murder upbraiding Rose and threatening to kill Rosenthal with his own hands. Lieutenant Becker and his lawyers were struck with amazement and their plans were disordered.

"I know it's the last of me," whispered Luban to a court attendant who had observed his trembling and his fright, but there was no tremor in his voice when he looked steadily at Lieutenant Becker a few minutes later and testified: "Mr. Becker said, 'If that Rosenthal is not croaked I will croak him myself.'"

It was the most telling feature of a day that had gone steadily against the defense. The first witness, Thomas Ryan, a chauffeur, had blanched under the vicious looks shot at him by the gunmen at the bar, and had said in a voice barely audible that he could not identify them. Giovanni Stanich, an Austrian of good birth, cultivated manners and keen intelligence had not been terrified by the black looks of the gunmen. He had looked in the face of Whitey Lewis (Frank Muller) and named Whitey as one of the four whom he saw shoot Rosenthal to death. And then came Luban, fearful and shrinking at first, but gaining courage as he went along and not only identified all four of the gunmen and Shapiro, the chauffeur, but delivered against Becker the first testimony concerning Becker with the murder.

When he walked to the bar of the court and stretched out his hand toward the gunmen, their voices suddenly shattered the dead quiet of the courtroom. They railed against him. They mouthed and mumbled. The voice of Lefty Louie Rosenberg rose to a screech. He was protesting against the method of identification. And when Luban had named them one by one, the retainers of the late Jack Zelig had lost a measure of the defiance and contemptuousness that have marked them. As for Becker the sweat was streaming down his face. He seemed to have aged.

MISSING AIRMEN

Feared Venturesome Aviators May Be Lost at Sea.

Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—Aviator Major Earl Reid and his passenger, Lieutenant Commander Henry G. Martin, his brother-in-law, who left Cape Point in Reid's hydroaeroplane to fly to the League Island navy yard and establish a new altitude record, are missing. Search among all the pilot stations along the Delaware bay and river has failed to give any clue to the missing men, and it is feared they may have been carried out to sea. The navy yard here has used the powerful wireless apparatus at its disposal, and everywhere the answer is "no news of Reid."

He Then Shot Himself.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 12.—Lloyd Anderson, aged twenty-three, colored, shot and fatally wounded Mrs. Martha Carter, aged twenty-four, also colored, at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Robinson. Anderson then turned the gun on himself and shot himself through the left side. It is believed he will die. Anderson was angry because the woman refused to live with him.

LABOR DOES NOT FORGET

PROF. WILSON'S ANTAGONISM TO ORGANIZED LABOR IS A MATTER OF RECORD.

REMEMBER THE SOUP HOUSES

The Dark Times of Democracy Still Fresh in the Memory of the Workingmen Who Had Nothing to Eat and No Place to Sleep.

PROF. WILSON ON LABOR.

"Labor is standardized by trades unions and this is the standard to which it is made to conform. . . . I need not point out how economically disastrous such a regulation of labor is. It is so unprofitable to the employer that in some trades it will presently not be worth while to attempt anything at all. . . . Our economic supremacy may be lost because the country grows more and more full of unprofitable servants."—From an address by Prof. Wilson to the graduating class of Princeton university, June 30, 1909.

Woodrow Wilson, Democratic candidate for president, is now addressing honeyed words to the laboring man in the hope of securing the labor vote. He would, if he could, have the workingman forget the address delivered by him at Princeton in 1909, in which he regretted that "labor is standardized by the trades unions," and asserted that such a regulation of labor is "economically disastrous." Nor will labor forget that in the same speech he characterized members of labor unions as "unprofitable servants."

No wonder that the Minnesota State Federation of Labor recently adopted resolutions condemning Professor Wilson for his antagonistic attitude toward organized labor.

And while Professor Wilson is appealing to the workingman to overlook his own personal views and vote the Democratic ticket he should know that the record of the Democratic party in connection with the workingman is engraved upon the tablets of labor's memory.

Labor has not voted for a Democratic president since the terrible experience which followed the Democratic victory in 1892.

And labor will not this year vote to repeat those distressing times.

What Labor Remembers.

Labor has not forgotten that under Democratic administration, before the election of President McKinley, thousands of idle men were walking the streets of every city, town and hamlet in the country in search of employment and the chance to earn an honest living, while those or many of them who chanced to have employment were working for a mere pittance.

Labor has not forgotten the soup houses established all over the country at that time.

Labor has not forgotten the processions of unemployed—from New York to San Francisco, and from the Canadian border to the Gulf, seeking NOT CHARITY, BUT WORK, during a Democratic national administration.

Labor has not forgotten Coxey's and Kelly's "armies," one of the products of Democracy.

Labor has not forgotten the hordes of tramps made by Democratic rule.

Labor has not forgotten that the Democratic national administration caused the depletion of labor's treasures to keep the destitute and unemployed alive.

Labor has not forgotten those trying days of Democratic misrule, when it turned its hails, meeting places and assembly rooms into sleeping quarters for all who could find room therein.

No Bread to Eat.

Labor has not forgotten that labor alone suffered then, that labor lacked bread to eat, clothes to wear and a roof for shelter.

Labor has not forgotten that labor alone worked out the problem of its salvation in those trying days.

Labor has not forgotten that it bounded Democratic rule for Republican rule at its first opportunity in the first presidential election after that period—in 1896, and has not voted for a Democratic candidate for president since.

Labor has not forgotten that trusts and monopolies were born in the White House while a Democratic president stood guardian.

Labor has not forgotten that Democratic free trade means free trade in labor only.

Now a Full Dinner Pail.

Labor has not forgotten its lesson on how it passed through poverty and friendlessness and Democratic mal-administration to the full dinner pail of the McKinley and subsequent Republican administrations.

Labor has not forgotten that the American Federation of Labor held its annual convention in the council chamber in the city hall, Chicago, the week of Monday, December 11, 1893, at a time when 5,000 men were night-sleeping on the cold stone floors of

Chicago's city hall building, because of lack of money to secure other shelter.

Farmers Will Not Forget.
And farmers have not forgotten that during the period which brought such untold disaster to labor they themselves were neither prosperous nor happy. They worked hard and raised big crops, but their market was gone because their customers could not buy.

The candidate and the party whose policy puts labor out of a job robs the farmer of his profit just as truly as if the blow were aimed at him direct.

LODGE'S BULL'S EYE SHOTS

Massachusetts Senator States Some Truths in Few Words.

When Senator Lodge of Massachusetts opened the Taft campaign in Ohio recently he uttered some truths in a few words. Here are a few of the sentences which ought to be read and remembered:

"I believe most profoundly that now, as in the past, the success of the Republican party is for the best interests of the people of the United States."

"The Democratic house presented the woollen schedule in a form which would put an end to the woollen manufacturers of the United States and would slaughter the product of the American sheep raiser."

"If you desire to strike down the sheep and woollen industries of the United States, give the Democrats full power, and you will have it done; if you do not, the only way to preserve them is to elect a Republican congress and a Republican president."

"If the proposed constitutional changes should be carried into effect they would completely revolutionize our system and theory of government, as we have known it since the beginning of history."

"All the progress that has been made in this country in 50 years has been by the Republican party."

"The Republican party has always been the party of sane and rational progress under the Constitution."

"The Republican party stands for liberty as against license; for order as against confusion; for loyalty to the great principles of justice and freedom which have been handed down to us from the days of Washington; in one word, it stands for the constitution which Marshall interpreted and which Lincoln saved."

DESERTS PROF. WILSON.

Why a Democratic Editor Declares for President Taft.

J. Holman Buck, the Democratic editor of the Western Nevada Miner at Mina, in voicing his allegiance to the Taft administration, is not sparing in his criticisms of the actions and policies of Governor Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic nominee, or of Roosevelt. Buck is a Democrat of the old school and readily sees the error of his ways in supporting the Democratic nominee for the presidency. In speaking of Wilson he has the following to say:

"A man utterly untried in the affairs of government; whose administration as governor of New Jersey has proven a failure and a farce; whose views have been contracted by a lifetime spent in the narrow confines of the school room; whose associations have naturally been the classes rather than the masses and whose radical views and vagaries outrival those of Debs and Emma Goldman and that no more represents real Democracy than does the frothings of Roosevelt. The issues they are Taft, conservatism, the preservation of the constitution and a free Republican form of government, versus Wilson, socialistic radicalism and the turning over of established form of government to a mobocracy. Believing as we do we would be unjust to ourselves and false to principles and the public did we not align ourselves with Mr. Taft and the principles he represents. We hope that in the coming fray that he will be victorious and shall lend every effort at our command to bring this about. Party lines, by the issues promulgated, have been swept aside and conservative Democrats, be they true to themselves and principles, will support William Howard Taft for president, and rebuke the arrogant domination of Bryan and his piratical band of socialistic agitators."

DODGED TARIFF REVISION

Roosevelt, When President, Failed to Take Any Action.

Once in his life Mr. Roosevelt almost expressed an opinion on the tariff question. In a preliminary draft of one of his messages to congress as it came from the printer was this sentence: "In a later message I shall discuss the tariff." On revising the proof sheets of his message Mr. Roosevelt blue-penciled that line. And he never came even that near to discussing the question again as long as he remained in the White House.

And yet the tariff law then on the statute books was far more objectionable than the Payne law, which he is now so vigorously denouncing. Why didn't he revise the tariff the way he now says it ought to have been when he had the power? He says now he wants to "fix it so that more of the tariff 'prize money' will go into the pay envelope of the workman." Why didn't he "fix it" that way during the seven and one-half years he was in the White House?

In other words, in the face of his record while in office, is not all the Third Term's present talk about the tariff the most transparent guff and bluff and half-truth?

Labor has not forgotten that the American Federation of Labor held its annual convention in the council chamber in the city hall, Chicago, the week of Monday, December 11, 1893, at a time when 5,000 men were night-sleeping on the cold stone floors of

Cincinnati's Mayor Arrested on Charge That Was Not Pressed.

Action Against Cincinnati's Mayor Fell Down.

Cincinnati, Oct. 12.—On warrants issued in Magistrate Hohenstein's court, Mayor Henry T. Hunt was arrested at the city hall on the charge that when he was county prosecutor he committed a felony by accepting settlements of claims against breweries. The warrants were issued on application of A. H. Larvin, secretary of the Owl Publishing company, which publishes a small weekly paper.

Mayor Hunt, when told that warrants were out for him, said he would wait at the city hall and be ready for any arrest. Following the arrest, the mayor and some friends proceeded to the suburb of Norwood, where the magistrate's court is located, and after waiting an hour and a half, the magistrate dismissed the case against the mayor, as no prosecuting witness appeared.

STRUCK FROM BEHIND

Judge Assaulted by a Man Who Recently Sought Court Decision.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., Oct. 12.—Judge Francis M. Thompson was struck on the head and rendered unconscious by James W. West, a stone cutter, while he was campaigning for re-election on the Republican ticket. The judge stopped at the Fink stone quarry. West approached from behind and struck the judge with a large stone. West alleged he was not treated right when his wife was granted a divorce by the judge. West was arrested on the charge of attempting murder and placed in jail. The judge will recover.

Dr. Fritch Declared Innocent.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 12.—A jury in the circuit court declared Dr. George A. Fritch not guilty of the murder of Maybelle Millman of Ann Arbor, whose dismembered body was found in Ecorse creek, near Detroit, in August, 1909.

Wilson Invades Taft's State.

Cleveland, Oct. 12.—After a swing through northeastern Ohio Woodrow Wilson presented his case to the people of Cleveland last night in a speech on the tariff and the trusts.

Geo. T. Craddock, Rubie, Ark., says: "I was bothered with lumbago for seven years so I could not work. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine which gave me little or no relief. Two bottles of Foley Kidney Pills cured me and now I can do any kind of work. I cheerfully recommend them to my friends." F. B. Johnson & Co.

THE PURCHASING POWER OF ONE CHOICE STEER

That the prosperity of the United States under the administration of President Taft has helped the farmers very materially, when compared to the lean Democratic year of 1896 is shown in the comparative purchasing power of a 1,200-pound steer in 1896 and in 1911. In 1896 a steer of this weight would buy 612 pounds of coffee, and in 1911 663 pounds; that it would purchase 1,489 pounds of sugar in 1896, and 1,767 pounds in 1911; that in 1896 it would purchase 1,112 yards of shirting, and in 1911 1,588 yards; that in 1896 it would purchase twenty-seven pairs of shoes, and in 1911 thirty-seven pairs; that in 1896 it would purchase 4,533 pounds of eight-penny nails, and in 1911 6,196; that in 1896 it would purchase 12,240 common bricks, and in 1911 15,253. The comparison of the two years further shows that there has been an increase of 62 per cent. in the cash value of a fat steer.

Effectiveness of New Pension Law Depends Largely Upon Election of Republican.

The old soldiers of Indiana are especially interested in the coming election, since upon its outcome is dependent in the next four years the effectiveness of the pension law passed this year, in May. The National Tribune, the non-partisan organ of the veterans, declares that the best interests of the veterans demands that they support President Taft and that the coming election has resolved itself into a contest between Taft and Wilson.

The Tribune says of Wilson: "Born in the south, of rabidly Confederate parents, spending his boyhood days among those who hated the Union soldiers with a consuming hatred, with all his earlier lifelong impressions fiercely against the men of the Union army, he can not help being even more hostile to the pensioners than Cleveland was, who came to manhood in a loyal community. All of Wilson's utterances have been distinctly unfriendly to the claims of Union veterans, and he undoubtedly shares the belief proclaimed by every prominent newspaper and public man who has supported him that the Union veterans are a singularly undeserving class that is pillaging the national treasury. He probably has this view much more strongly even than Grover Cleveland had."

The Tribune predicts if elected, Wilson would endeavor to make the pension act of May 11, 1912, of as little use as possible to veterans and says: "We know that this would be the case from the bitter calumnies with which the Wilson papers and the speeches of his supporters in Congress were filled during the consideration of the act of May 11, 1912. The veterans and their widows are now nearly twenty years older than they were when Cleveland made the merciless raid upon them. They are vastly less able to stand the mental distress and hardships of another such cruel period. They must rouse themselves, and induce all the voters that they can possibly influence against the man whose election threatens them with such calamitous consequences. Self-preservation, if no other reason, should dictate that they should exert every means in their power to elect William H. Taft and prevent the election of Woodrow Wilson."

PROTECTION FOR THE FARMERS.

Democratic Platform Makes False Assertion, While Hoosier Farmers Readily Understand Real Meaning.

Democratic speakers, in their attempts to defend their anti-protection plank, are endeavoring to throw dust in the eyes of Indiana farmers that the tillers of the soil may not see the real meaning of this particular plank. The Democratic platform asserts:

"The farmer sells largely in free markets and buys almost entirely in the protected markets."

The first half of that assertion is plain falsehood. The farmer has his full share of protection for his products. It was the tear of loss of that protection that caused many farmers to oppose the proposition to establish reciprocity with Canada.

The Indiana farmers are hardly expecting protected markets for their products and free markets in which to purchase what they may need. Manifestly they can not secure such discrimination in their favor. If the Democratic party should gain control of the government, and proceed to Free-Trademark Tariff revision, the farmers' protection would have to go with the rest.

Does the Democratic party imagine that it can fool the farmers with the false statement that they haven't protection and thus cause them to believe that Free-Trademark revision will not harm their interests; but give them an advantage?

The farmers know that they have protection. Also they know that they would lose it if the Democratic anti-protection policy were carried into effect.

Turning to Taft.

The New York Herald says that at the close of the fifth week of the nation-wide poll, being conducted by several metropolitan newspapers, President Taft has become decidedly stronger and that Republicans in several states who were rated as having gone over to the bull moose camp have returned to the Taft fold. These gains are reported as particularly noticeable in New England and the northwest.

As we have previously held, straw ballots and the like are of little practical value. As a rule they prove nothing in particular. This poll by metropolitan papers is not of much importance and would deserve little or no attention, even in respect to the Taft candidacy, were it not for the fact that the results tally with various other observations that have been and are still being made.

For instance, James A. Tawney, former congressman from Minnesota, who has been closely following the situation throughout the northwest, says that President Taft will carry Minnesota despite the claims being made by the bull moosers. He further declares that what is true of Minnesota is true of North Dakota, Montana, Iowa and other states in which he has conducted inquiries. In all of these states the trend at present seems to be unmistakably toward the president, according to Mr. Tawney.

President Taft's statement, after reviewing the reports which have been received, that he has every reason to be satisfied with conditions and that he is confident of success and looking to the future optimistically is in line with the results shown in the nationwide newspaper poll, with the observations of Mr. Tawney and with the conclusions of other political observers who have been watching most closely. The conclusions of the president are also in line with those being drawn at Republican state headquarters, based on reports from all parts of Indiana.

Getting down to reasons—facts—the Republicans are now well organized nationally, just as they are in the state. A strong and aggressive campaign is being waged. Results are naturally showing not only in the polls but in the various other investigations.

Altogether these prove the wisdom of the correspondent of the New York Tribune, who said: "I am amazed that the more I come in contact with the people to observe how the wind of public sentiment is veering around to Taft." Many of those who were for Roosevelt this same correspondent concludes, "are today turning to the safe and sane candidate, whose well balanced mind has presided over the affairs of the nation for the last four years."

A Bull Moose Whine.

The miserable, little contemptible Bull Moose newspapers up at Richmond have set up a puny whine because the commissioners of Wayne county have refused to appoint Bull Moose election inspectors. They unite—they have a combination to hoodwink the people of Richmond—in complaining that the refusal would not be so bad were it not for the fact that the board had promised to appoint their inspectors and then violated its pledge. The Item whines:

Citizens who require that their public officials be men on honor, ought to think well over Mr. Farlow's qualifications. He is a candidate for reelection.

We would suggest that the Bull Moose organs clean their own party of such men before it sets up standards for the older and wiser Republican party to follow. The Bull Moose organs in Wayne county are behind the standard of a man who is a more pronounced violator of pledges than any other man of equal prominence in public life.

It was Theodore Roosevelt who said it would be a calamity for him to take the nomination for a third term, and who said that he would adhere to the unwritten law that no president shall have more than two terms. Yet Theodore Roosevelt is today losing the esteem and respect of a great mass of the people of the United States because of his wild

Sam Gidderson Says:

That it is about time to get out your Schedule K's and dust them off.

chase after a third term in the white houses.

And there are plenty of other examples!

Editoriallettes:

Men acquire the habit of smoking, burn the cigars and borrow the matches. That is some men do.

The editor of the Powhatan Bee, Brown county, Kansas, has fallen heir to fifty thousand dollars. He announces that he will sell his paper and take to the tall timber. Just as if anybody would stay in the newspaper business after having fifty thousand brought in on a silver platter.

And too, we read that burglars blew up a safe in a newspaper office and stole thirteen cents. We presume the editor was treasurer of some Sunday school.

This is a sample of the melancholy days which are not melancholy when we have pumpkin day.

kind of seed he was planting back in the sowing time.

"I see a farmer sowing oats, and say its oats you're going to reap; and he smiles a pitying sort of smile, and says, "Certainly, don't you think I know that?" But when I say to him, "Sow the card table and you'll reap a gambling son," he smiles a different sort of smile and says "Nonsense." And yet nine-tenths of the gamblers in the country came out of card-playing homes.

"I see a farmer sowing clover seed and he's not surprised when he has clover for a crop, but when he sows beer-kegs in his cellar and the decanter on his side-board, and in after years hears the reeling step of a drunken son, coming home from a night's debauch, he says, with surprise, "My son, has it come to this. Well, you old fool of a farmer, what could you expect it to come to."

"Sow the saloon and you'll rear drunks every time. The saloon is the dirtiest, most damnable, hell-soaked corrupt institution that ever wriggled its way out of the slime of the infernal pit, and to regulate or to license it, or to do anything else but prohibit it, is the most contemptibly low-down, damnable business any man or woman can engage in."

"I see the tidy farmer's wife planting morning glory seeds by the wall and the lattice, and I say, "Good morning, farmer's wife, what are you expecting to grow here?" And she smiles a pitying sort of smile, and says, "Why, morning glories, of course, what do you think, blackberries?" But when I say to her, sow the parlor dance and you may reap a ruined life in your home, she smiles another sort of smile, and says "umph, what nonsense, I can trust my daughters," and yet there are 300,000 ruined girls in our country today; one-half of them came out of Christian homes, and three-fourths of them out of country homes, 60,000 girls are dragged down to this life every year, 5,000 every month, 17 every day, and that means that some fair innocent young life is blasted in this land of ours every eight minutes.

"I read of an evening reception the other day given by some of our so-called best society in an eastern city, and the newspapers the next day, in commenting upon the costumes worn, said, "Most of the dresses were without the semblance of a sleeve, while the low-cut bodices were supported by little gold bands running up over the shoulder." In the name of God and decency, what does a woman want to dress like that for in the presence of a man?

"This low-neck business is the abomination of modern society. There are thousands of men and young men all about you who, on their physical sides, are bundles of quivering nerves and passion, and thousands of them are putting up an earnest, honest fight against impure thoughts and unholy passions, and its a burning shame that at all most every turn they make in society and even on the street they must be met with the half-clad forms of women who haven't got any more sense than to dress like some of you do. This peek-a-boo waist business and open lace work over your breast and arms is all wrong. You say you have to dress that way in order to be comfortable and keep cool. In plain Anglo-Saxon language that is a lie. A man walks along on the same sidewalk and under the same sun, and he wears an undervest, an outer shirt, collar, necktie, vest, and coat, and he's not uncomfortable, except on the hottest day, when he can take his coat off and it's not necessary for a woman to go about with her arms and breast covered with mosquito-bar, and next to nothing in order to be comfortable.

"If you should ask any of you women why you dress as you do, and you told the truth and wouldn't lie, you would say that you do it out of difference to the taste of the opposite sex, and that is one of the great reasons why you ought to dress as you do. God expects a woman to be beautiful so far as this is possible and to be cleanly and attractive."

the Big Four train for Indianapolis. It has been reported to the sheriff that they attempted in vain to obtain a marriage license in Indianapolis. Illustrated in their efforts to get married, they boarded an I & C. traction car and came to this city. They hired an automobile at Ball's garage and drove to Milroy, daring to enter the very place where they evaded the officials and made good their escape.

The purpose of the trip back to Milroy, it is stated, was to get Howard Campbell's wheel chair. Young Campbell is a hopeless cripple, wholly unable to walk. He made the trip to St. Paul, Indianapolis, here and back to Milroy without his chair, being transferred from place to place in a cab or automobile. The chair was loaded in the automobile from here and the couple hurried on to St. Paul where they boarded the 4:20 train. When Sheriff Beabout called the Big Four agent at St. Paul, the latter instantly remembered Campbell and Miss Vernal. He said that they bought tickets to Cincinnati.

It is said that Campbell told his friends in Milroy that they would never be back and that he had a position as a bookkeeper in a Kentucky city which would pay sixty dollars a month. The report that Campbell and his bride were back in Milroy last evening arose due to the fact that some one from Milroy called up a Rushville office by telephone and said it was Campbell talking. Milroy people said today that the couple had not returned there.

The flight to Indianapolis, back here and then to Cincinnati by way of Milroy and St. Paul is but a flash in the pan as compared with the usual methods Campbell and his bride resorted to in order to get away. A brief story of their elopement was told in the Daily Republican yesterday.

The girl's parents live in Indianapolis. She was sent to Clermont some time ago because she was incorrigible, and from there was sent to the home of Dr. Hume in Milroy. A few days ago the girl's parents in Indianapolis received a letter from her, in which she told of her desire to marry Campbell. Saying nothing of their objection in reply the parents notified the officers at the Clermont school and an officer was sent to bring the girl back to the school. Campbell, however, received word and with auto frustrated the plans of the parents and the school officials after her detention in Milroy.

Mrs. Bernell-Campbell, who had been paroled from the school, was being brought back because she had violated her parole. Officials of the school said that her marriage will be no bar to her being compelled to serve the remainder of her term if she can be found.

CHAPTER XXV.

Enemies Face to Face.

As events shaped themselves the problem presented by Dr. Massey found a speedy solution. Had I been compelled to grapple with it unaided I am not yet sure what course I should have pursued. Of my own volition I must have hesitated to take a step which could not fail to throw suspicion—at least among the only partially informed—upon my absent and defenseless friend. But all choice in the matter was denied me.

I arranged with Dr. Massey that he should go unaccompanied to his patient's room, and, without so much as a hint that he was cognizant of what had transpired on the previous night, make whatever examination he deemed necessary to a definite conclusion.

In the meantime, having learned from Checkabedy that Evelyn was in the breakfast room, I joined her there. Her curiosity had ripened by a night's suppression; and having dismissed the footman who was serving her, she at once demanded the fulfillment of my promise to tell her everything.

"It's another case where you have the right to say, 'I told you so!'" I began, as I took a chair next to her.

In her wide blue eyes I read that she divined my meaning.

"Yes," I went on, "the man upstairs is not your uncle. We have been nursing a viper, it seems, who promises to give us a deal of trouble before we are through with him."

There was no need for her to question me. Rapidly, succinctly, I told her the story I had learned from Yup Sing; told her, too, of the scene in the bedchamber, after I had left her on the previous night; and showed her the letter from McNish's poor old Scotch mother.

"There, there," I soothed, as in silence but with quivering lips and eyes overflowing, she started to read the tremblingly penned sentences a second time. "I'm sorry for the dear old creature, too, but—"

"Philip," she interrupted me, her face and voice alike pleading. "Let us send him back to her!"

"Send him back!" I repeated in amazement.

"Yes. We can, can't we? We don't have to give him up to those horrid Chinamen, do we? He's well enough to go, isn't he? Why can't we call a cab, give him enough money for his passage and send him, at once? There's a steamer sailing this morning, isn't there?"

For just a moment I was on the point of yielding. Seldom has a villain had a more puissant advocate than had McNish in this enthusiastic, resolute girl, spurred to his salvation by the pathetic appeal of that maternal yearning which breathed from every line of the letter before her. The unselfish purity of her cause illuminated and transfigured her. Her beauty was radiant.

"Answer me!" she insisted, impatient at my silence. "Isn't it possible? Isn't it really the very best way out of a difficulty? It will never do to admit that we have had that man here in mistake for Uncle Robert, you know."

"But there is something you have forgotten, my dear child," I objected, with all the mildness I could bestow upon the words. "In your wish to give joy to this poor old mother—and in that I am with you heart and soul—

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Rushville People Know How to Save it.

Many Rushville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Here is a Rushville citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. Ella Endicott, 125 South Harrison street, Rushville, Ind., says:

"We have used Doan's Kidney Pills in our family with good results. A member of the family suffered from severe pains through his back and had difficulty in straightening after stooping. His kidneys were also irregular in action. Finally he used Doan's Kidney Pills and they corrected the troubles."

the most prominent and best educated Chinaman in New York, and his friend the Chinese Vice Consul to meet me here today at noon. The chances are they will bring a United States deputy marshal with them, with a warrant for McNish's arrest. Now if we give him up, what will be the result? He will still maintain that he is Cameron in spite of our knowledge to the contrary. Yup Sing and his clan will insist that he is right and that we are wrong, and our chances of finding Cameron will dwindle. It isn't reasonable to expect that those engaged in the abduction plot will confess to their error and inform us as to Cameron's place of detention, is it?"

Dr. Massey knitted his brow behind the bow of his glasses and pursed his thin lips.

"We are certainly confronted by a very trying complication," he admitted with characteristic gravity.

"Miss Grayson has suggested that we send McNish abroad—at once, on a steamer sailing this morning."

"Mr. Bryan could go with him," Evelyn volunteered.

"If the United States authorities have a warrant for him," the physician argued, "that would only delay matters. They would arrest him on landing."

There was no question as to the accuracy of this deduction.

"And the newspapers," I added, "would be sure to publish columns of speculation. . . . If we could only wring an admission from McNish it would simplify matters."

"Isn't there some one you could confront him with?" Dr. Massey asked, and hope rose within me at the suggestion.

"As far as I can make out, from what O'Hara tells me," was my rejoinder, "the police have in custody now the Eurasian cook who, I believe, has been McNish's Nemesis these sixteen years. If we could bring those two miscreants face to face, McNish would be sure to betray himself."

"Then arrange it by all means," urged the doctor.

"Have McNish taken there, you mean?"

"Or have the Eurasian brought here?"

And so, ultimately through the offices of O'Hara, who all this time had been awaiting me in the tonneau of my car which still stood at the door, John Soy, accompanied by two plain clothes men from the Detective Bureau, was brought from the Tombs to that sumptuous home on upper Fifth avenue.

I say "ultimately" because his coming was delayed beyond all patience. Four after hour passed. The morning dragged by with periodic telephone excuses from O'Hara. The hearing was in progress before the police magistrate. . . . Soy had been held for the grand jury. . . . The magistrate would have to sign a permit and he could not be approached until he came off the bench. . . . Soy had gone to the Tombs. . . . The warden was at luncheon and could not be seen for half an hour.

Meanwhile Dr. Massey, impelled by the necessities of his practice, had departed, and Yup Sing and the vice consul, Chen Mok, had arrived and been relegated to the reception room. To my relief, Checkabedy reported that they were unaccompanied. Meanwhile, too, Evelyn had received a call from Miss Clement and had learned with some dismay that the missionary's ill-fated informant had left with her no more definite information regarding Cameron's transportation than that which she had already conveyed to us.

"We're just starting up in a taxicab," came at length from O'Hara over the wire. "We'll be there in less than half an hour."

And in less than half an hour they came, an ignoble, vulgar quartette against a stately, pompous background.

I met them in the great hall, standing before the broad, sculptured chimney-piece.

The three detectives were more or less of a piece—gross, coarse, red-faced men whose hands and feet seemed out of all proportion to their size, bulky as it was. Of the three O'Hara, possibly because of familiarity, struck me as the least offensive. But after all it was not the detectives who claimed and held my chief interest, but the shrunken, shadow-like creature they had in charge, whom I recognized instantly as the supposed castaway the Sibylla had picked up that warm October day somewhere east of Nantucket—the slinking figure I had followed through the press of Doyers street almost to my death.

My conjecture was thus in part verified; John Soy and Peter Johnson were the same, and it only remained now to prove that the rest of my guess was as well founded.

Stepping to the door of the reception room, I made brief apology for my detention and bade my two Catholic visitors join the others.

"I think Mr. Yun," I observed, "that you gave no sign that you knew?" Evelyn asked him to be seated and drew out a chair for him.

"And how do you find the patient?" I inquired, when he had sat down.

"Quite normal in every respect save one. He is in a highly nervous state. He is endeavoring to maintain the fiction that he is the gentleman we supposed he was. He evidently learned his lesson from Mr. Bryan, before we suspected anything. It is really wonderful how well he does it, considering that he never saw the man he is trying to impersonate."

"But he must know that he has been discovered. He certainly knows I have this letter."

"A desperate man will battle against the most overwhelming odds," Dr. Massey observed, "and he is a desperate man."

"You gave no sign that you knew?" Evelyn asked.

"Not the slightest. I pretended that I believed him Mr. Cameron."

"But Mr. Bryan must have—" I began.

"On the contrary," said the doctor, "Mr. Bryan knows him only as the Mr. Cameron he has nursed from the first. He would be the last man to indicate to his patient a knowledge of anything untoward."

"Miss Grayson and I were just discussing a course of action when you arrived, Doctor," I explained, "but had reached no conclusion. Last night I arranged with Yup Sing, who is prob-

I suppose I was foolish enough to fancy that the merchant would at once make the identification I desired. I should have known better. In subtlety we are no match for the ancient race to which Yup Sing belonged, as was evidenced by the absolute impenetrability of his manner, as, after gazing sharply at John Soy, he turned to me with a visage as blank as the marble wall, and, in a voice without a shade of inflection, said:

"I do not know him. I have never seen him until now."

Had a white man dared to make such denial, I should have laughed in his face. But the dignity of the Oriental, the perfect aplomb of his manner, including an utter absence of all that could be construed as feigning, forbade such rejoinder; yet I knew that he had lied.

"Come, gentlemen," I said, denying myself even the satisfaction of a shoulder shrug, "and we shall decide whether the man upstairs is the villain you claim he is, or—" but I was in no mood to finish the sentence.

The seven of us, crowding into the elevator, were lifted to the floor above, where I preceded the others to the door of what we were wont to call Cameron's bedchamber. There I paused.

"Pardon me just a moment," I begged, with my hand on the knob, "until I see whether everything is ready."

I had instructed Mr. Bryan to have McNish up and dressed, and I wished to make sure that these preparations were completed. But I was hardly prepared for the scene which greeted my entrance.

McNish, clothed in the suit he had worn when I found him, was in the act of closing a drawer of an old-fashioned rosewood secretary which occupied a place against the right wall, beneath one of the medallioned windows. And the nurse was nowhere in sight.

Startled by the sound of the opening door, the trespasser half turned, his hands still on the brass drawer handles; then, at sight of me, he wheeled completely and stood defiant with his back to the antique desk.

"What are you doing there?" I cried, indignantly. "What were you looking for?"

Even before he spoke I saw the look of cunning come into his small, furtive eyes.

"I was looking for some papers of mine, Clyde," he answered, and his voice was so like Cameron's that, for just a moment, a shuddering uncertainty assailed me. Only the crafty leer weighed for the truth.

To be continued.

Mrs. Paul Wehling, 316 Smith St., Peoria, Ill., had kidney and bladder trouble, with terrible backache and pain across the hips. Just imagine her condition. She further says: "I was also very nervous, had headache and dizzy spells, and was fast getting worse when I took Foley Kidney Pills, and now all my troubles are cured. Foley Kidney Pills have done so much for me I shall always recommend them." F. B. Johnson & Co. (Advertisement.)

Evidence Offered With Proof.

Evidence to the same effect is given by the Gale Manufacturing company of Albion, Mich., which was specifically charged by the free trade advocates with selling goods more cheaply to Canadian farmers than to American farmers.

The secretary and general manager of the company, under date of August 30, 1912, wrote to the Tariff Reform club denying the charge and threatening to sue for damages unless the assertion was promptly retracted. The firm also wrote to the Republican national committee as follows:

"Plows, planters, cultivators and other farm machinery made in the United States cost 25 per cent. more in Canada than in this country. You can stand on this statement, and if it is challenged we can produce proof."

The proof mentioned in this letter consists of letters from retail dealers throughout Canada quoting the prices at which the products of the Michigan factory are sold to Canadian farmers.

These figures agree substantially with those given in the government publication.

For instance, a planter which sells in Detroit for $40 costs $45 in

Windsor, less than a mile away across the Detroit river, and a cultivator which sells in Detroit for $30 cannot be bought in Windsor for less than $36.

As soon as free trade statements are subjected to the cold analysis of investigation their falsity is shown. It is an old proverb that a lie will travel seven leagues while truth is putting on its boots. It is important, therefore, that farmers who have heard the untruths of the free traders should promptly learn the real facts in the case.

The Kind of a Man He Is.

A few months ago a little Polish girl at Erie, Pa., wrote this letter to President Taft:

Dear Mr. President:—Myself and little brother are cold and hungry. Mother is in jail. We are without food and wood. Dear Mr. President, can't you help us?

What did the president do? Excuse himself on the ground of official dignity, or pre-occupation? No. He answered the letter with his own hand, enclosing a crisp bill; telegraphed the authorities at Erie, who investigated the case, and before sun-down returned the mother to her sorrowing children.

By the way, did you ever read or hear of Colonel Roosevelt doing a gentle, kindly, tenderhearted thing like that?

CAMPAIGN LIE IS NAILED

Investigation by State Department Gives Facts and Figures, and Michigan Manufacturing Firm Adds Evidence.

"Farmers Buncoed by the High Tariff" is the title of a publication industriously circulated among farmers by the Tariff Reform Bureau of New York, a free trade annex of the Democratic party.

It asserts that American-made farm implements are sold in Canada at a lower price than they are obtainable by American farmers. The purpose of the statement is to prove that the American farmers are made to suffer through the operation of the protective tariff laws.

A LONG LIST OF NEW WITNESSES

Senate Committee Will Be Busy Next Week.

PROBING CAMPAIGN FUNDS

Coming Sessions Will Be Marked by the Examination of Persons Representing All the Various Big Political Interests and Some Important Testimony is Expected to Be Brought Out—Previous Campaign Figures.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Before the senate committee additional testimony in regard to contributions by corporations to the Roosevelt campaign of 1904 has been brought out. Upon adjournment of the committee to meet again Monday, announcement was made that Alton B. Parker, George W. Perkins, William McCombs, chairman of the Democratic national committee; William McAdoo, assistant chairman of the same committee; Roger C. Sullivan, Josiah Quincy, Lieutenant Governor H. L. Nichols of Ohio, Frank A. Munsey, and Senator John H. Bankhead will be heard as witnesses next week.

Edward T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, banker and associate of J. P. Morgan, told of the interest taken by himself and his business friends in promoting the presidential candidacy of Mr. Roosevelt in 1904.

In 1904 Mr. Stotesbury made collections among business men in Pennsylvania in behalf of the Republican national committee and the Republican candidate. He raised $165,759.50, and turned that amount over to Cornelius N. Bliss, the treasurer of the committee. It was apparent that the Roosevelt campaign managers relied on Mr. Stotesbury to tap the steel interests of the country. He collected $32,000 from these sources and this, added to the $150,000 contributed by J. P. Morgan, makes a total of $188,000 from interests keenly concerned in tariff legislation.

List of Contributors.

Among those contributing to the 1904 campaign at the instance of Mr. Stotesbury were the United States Steel corporation, $12,775; the American Banknote company, $1,000; Charlemagne Tower, $7,500; Drexel & Co., Philadelphia representatives of J. P. Morgan, $5,000; Bethlehem Steel company, $5,000; Cambria Steel company, $5,000; William Cramp & Sons, $1,000; Thomas Dolan, $10,000; G. W. Elkins, $2,500; Midville Steel company, $5,000; Philadelphia Electric company, $5,000.

Judge Anderson in ruling on the testimony concerning Gompers which Mr. Noel said it would be shown was relevant in connection with the situation on the coast, said if it later appeared that the question of Mr. Gompers' presence in St. Louis at the time indicated was not relevant he would so instruct the jury and would tell them not to consider any mention of Gompers' name in connection with the St. Louis registrations.

Hotel Clerks Identify Alleged Dynamiters.

AS HARBINGERS OF TROUBLE THE LATTER GAVE STERN CHASE

From Evidence Brought Out in Conspiracy Trial at Indianapolis, It Appears That the McNamaras and McManigal Had Been Present in Many Cities Simultaneously With or Just Prior to Dynamite Explosions.

Indianapolis, Oct. 12.—In the dynamite trial the government continues taking the testimony of hotel clerks, the evidence showing that men on trial were at the hotels simultaneously with the dynamiting of structures in the cities named or that they had been there at divers times just prior to the explosions. Photographs of the McNamaras were identified by the witnesses as those of men who had registered under assumed names, and McManigal was identified by several of the clerks.

The government's first mention in this case of Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor was made when Special Assistant United States Attorney J. W. Noel asked a hotel clerk from St. Louis if Gompers was at the hotel at the time O. A. Tietlmo, Frank M. Ryan, J. J. McNamara and M. J. Young, defendants, and several other labor men were registered while the A. F. of L. convention of 1910 was in progress.

DODGED AND RAN

But Detective's Shot Brought Down This Escaping Prisoner.

Tipton, Ind., Oct. 12.—A man supposed to be Robert Brockman from the papers found on him, and said to be wanted at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., for blowing a safe, was shot and killed while trying to find a hiding place under the veranda at Antony Hurley's home in this city.

The shot was fired by R. O. Emerson of Lima, O., a detective in the employ of the Lake Erie & Western railroad. The bullet struck Brockman in the heart.

Emerson saw the man and notified Chief of Police Devault there was a reward of $600 for his capture. Brockman was arrested and taken before the mayor. While the authorities were consulting Brockman dodged and ran. Shots were fired at him, but he kept on running till he reached the Hurley home. He darted around the house and then under the porch, but the officers saw him. Emerson was the first to reach the house. He stooped over and fired one shot, killing him. On his person were found a quantity of nitroglycerin, fuses, flashlight and other things usually used by safe-blowers.

PRUNE THE TREES IS ADMONITION

Prof. C. G. Woodbury, Indiana Apple Show Secretary, Gives Apple Growers Timely Advice.

SEVERE WINTER INJURIOUS

Blight and severe winter injury has caused great damage to Indiana apple orchards. Prof. C. G. Woodbury, secretary of the Indiana Apple Show which is to be held in Indianapolis, November 13-19, 1912, says, "Great care should be exercised in removing all dead wood from apple trees before the leaves fall this autumn. Limbs injured by the weather or blight can be easily seen now, and can be removed more readily and cheaper than at the time of the annual pruning in the early spring. Dead leaves are worse than useless to the trees as they harbor numerous forms of fungus troubles. Sharpen up your pole shear and pruning knife, and remove this dead wood at once. This will remove one great source of infection, so that it will be easier to produce show fruit for the 1913 Apple Show."

Apple culture is not a haphazard industry. Every means known to science must be exercised in past control, if merchantable fruit is to be produced. Orchard sanitation, as well as spraying, must be practiced. Great care should be exercised in caring for these trees, as the apple is one of the most important crops of the country.

McDaniel of Chicago and Jessie Pugh sang at the funeral, and many beautiful floral offerings were received. An older sister of the deceased is suffering with typhoid.

tions; you have broken every one of God's commandments over and over again and eternal justice says that you must suffer for your sin. But we're told in II Peter 3:9, it is not the will of God that anyone should perish, and so in Christ God made a way for you to escape.

"Christ wants to save you. You are lost tonight because of your sin, but we're told in Luke 19:10 that Christ came to seek and save that which was lost. He says 'Behold I stand at the door and knock.' Your salvation is the passion of his heart and every drop of blood that dyed the Cross of Calvary speaks tonight and tells you that in all the world there never has been a passion like the passion of Christ for you.

"Christ is able to save you.

"He can save out of the very jaws of hell and no one can ever be too far away or too far down to be saved by the power of Christ; for we are told in Heb. 7:25, He is able to save to the uttermost all who come unto God by Him." And so I say again if you are not saved it will be your own fault.

"Why is it that people will not come to God? What is it that stands between them?

"With young people there are two things I think especially that keep them from coming.

"1. The first is pleasure.

"A young lady who was a most beautiful waltzer came to Dr. John Hall one day and said 'I want to join the church.'

"Well," he said, "you know it is one thing to join the church and another thing to give yourself to Jesus Christ and I could not consent to the one unless I knew the other to be true. But if you become a Christian there are certain things you must give up."

"What do you mean? Do you mean that if I become a Christian I must give up dancing?"

"And the doctor replied, 'If you become a Christian and Jesus Christ asks you to give up your dancing, you must be ready to do it.'

"And she said, 'Dr. Hall, if it comes to choosing between Jesus Christ and the dance, I will hold to my dancing and let Jesus Christ go.'

"And the poor girl made her choice and went out into the world.

"Listen. To be a Christian does not mean to give up the dance; it does not mean to give up the theater or to give up this or that. But it does mean to give yourself up to God and then to do his will when he makes it clear. But I tell you now that any young woman who prefers the dance or any other thing to Christ is making the fatal mistake of her life, and the time will come when this and every other form of vain and empty and godless pleasure will become to you as the apples of Sodom, full of ashes and bitterness.

"Happiness doesn't come from card playing or theater going or wearing decolletage dresses. You've got a mighty infinitesimal mediocre make up if you can be satisfied with things like these, but if you had an earnest heart and a soul of any size you'd never be satisfied till you had something better and higher.

"The other thing that keeps you back is your pride.

"The reason why I know your pride is of the devil is because it will allow you to associate with low down trifling fellows and to give yourself to that which is unclean and mean and unworthy and never a blush will come to your cheek. And yet it won't allow you to walk down this aisle is a sign that you mean for fear some trifling and worthless young fellow or some empty headed, good for nothing woman will laugh at you. There isn't a young man in the town worth speaking to there isn't a young woman worth noticing when you pass her on the street that will sneer at you if you do what you think is right. And yet the Bible never spoke truer when it said: 'The fear of man bringeth a snare.' It's sure thing that catches you for the devil and leads to eternal ruin instead of to Christ and eternal life. Suppose they do laugh. He who laughs last, laughs best."
